Description

Glutathione plus alpha-lipoic acid, resveratrol and herbs

Whether produced by the body itself or obtained through the diet – the tripeptide glutathione can be found in every cell of the body. Due to its chemical structure of only 3 amino acids (cysteine, glutamic acid and glycine) it is not classified as a protein, but is often referred to as a "small protein". Above all, the peptide has made a name for itself as an effective antioxidant.
